

HE MADE NO PROMISES.

CONGRESSMAN LEHLBACH DENIES THE CHARGES AGAINST HIM.

It is claimed that he sold the privilege of selecting the postmaster at East Orange, N. J., to a leading Republican.

Last Sunday the New York Times published a long article, giving a circumstantial account of a split among the Republicans of East Orange over the postoffice. The office is one of the second class, the salary reaching the handsome figure of $2,000 per annum. The present incumbent is a young lady, by name Miss Mary E. Simonson, who was efficient as an official and agreeable to the public to do business with. Under her control the salary of the office had gone up from $1,600 to its present figure. The fact that East Orange is really but a suburb of New York City and its population is chiefly made up of rich and well-to-do bourgeois of aristocratic tendencies lends a metropolitan halo and importance to the contest. So soon as it was definitely known that Harrison and Morton had won the day, though it was known that no part in the victory, Republicans ambitious to serve their country by selling postage stamps were very numerous in the pretty precincts of East Orange. However, the commission of the postmistress did not expire until the 1st day of February next. It was a race of endurance rather than of speed. It narrowed down at last to three men—Stephen B. Long, a former postmaster; E. E. Mills and William H. Baldwin. At the last moment Mr. Long withdrew. The executive committee then decided by one majority in favor of Mr. Baldwin, who was the candidate favored by Mr. Henry A. Potter, a member of the committee and a very active Republican, well known throughout the State.

THE "TIMES" CHARGES.

The New York Times, in the article referred to, charges that "a candidate for another term, in 1888, he had frankly stated that he was not financially able to enter upon another canvass, although he desired very much to do so. An arrangement was patched up among the Republicans of Essex County by which a sufficient sum of money was subscribed, and Mr. Lehlbach was assured of another term. One of the contributors to this fund, amounting to $500, came from Henry A. Potter and he it was who by special agreement with Mr. Lehlbach was to have the naming of the postmaster. Reduced to hard facts, he had purchased the postoffice and it was what CONGRESSMAN LEHLBACH SAYS.

When the Critic representative asked Congressman Herman Lehlbach of the Sixth New Jersey District, of which East Orange forms a part, that gentleman had not read the Times, that publication evidently not forming a part of his daily reading. He took the clipping and read it through carefully and then pronounced it, so far as Mr. Potter's buying the privilege of naming the postmaster of East Orange, to be a lie. Mr. Lehlbach, who is chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said:

"I did not want to be a candidate for Congress at the last election, but the Republicans insisted on my running. I did not spend any money to get my election, for I do not believe in that kind of politics. Mr. Potter may have contributed $500 to the committee's campaign fund, but I have no personal knowledge of that. He is, indeed, whether he contributed anything, have made no recommendation for the East Orange postoffice nor any promise in regard to it, excepting alone that I had the East Orange contract that they would decide unanimously on a suitable person I would recommend him. All the gentlemen named as candidates are prominent citizens of East Orange and good Republicans."

"Have there been many changes in the postoffices of your district?"

"Not many. I have only recommended two, and in each case it was until after the election of the term of the Democratic incumbent. Two changes for cause have been made by the Postoffice Department, one at Newark, my home, which was really against my judgment, and the other at a small town in New Jersey."

"What do you think of the present way of appointing postmasters?"

"I do not like it. I believe it would be fairer and better to let the people elect their postmasters. But would take the matter out of national politics. They could be as much under the control of the Postoffice Department then as they are now. I approximate that system by endeavoring to recommend the person whom the people seem to want. Thus, when the Montclair office was to be filled, I recommended the candidate whom I thought came nearest to satisfying the majority of the people, and who would make an acceptable and efficient officer. Before the appointment was made, however, a delegation of Montclair citizens who disagreed with me called on me here and asked me to write to the Postoffice Department in favor of their man. I told them I couldn't do that, but I would go with them to the Postoffice Department and introduce them to the Postmaster General, to whom they could state their claims. They agreed to this. In making them and their errand known, I assured the Postmaster General that these gentlemen did not agree with me about the Montclair office; that I would give them a hearing, and that, if he thought it best to appoint their man, it would be all right with me and would give rise to no hard feeling on my part. Mr. Wamman, however, said that had another Congressman would say that. In the East Orange case I will make no recommendation until Miss Simonson's term expires next month. Mr. Potter is an active Republican, who no doubt contributed to the campaign fund, but he has purchased no postoffice from me. If the committee unanimously recommends the gentleman he favors, I shall join in it. If they recommend some one else, I shall join in that, if one not a factionist."

FIGHTING FOR SILVER.

What the League Executive Committee is Preparing to Do.

"Claudine legislation was resorted to with a view to unconcealing the downfall of silver," said Hon. Adam J. Warner of Ohio to a representative of The Critic this afternoon, "and not one person in a million knew what Congress was driving at when the coinage of silver was limited. Now, we propose to make this matter an issue of paramount importance before Congress and especially to the time seems propitious for such an agitation. Talks with some of the most pronounced monometallists held since our convention at St. Louis last November show that they are inclined to a more lenient construction of the law regarding silver and especially in view of the recent action by England relative to issuing silver notes."

At the St. Louis Convention a national committee was appointed, consisting of one person from each State and the committee in turn chose an executive committee, who will be in session in Washington for several days. Our plans, generally stated, are to frame a memorial to Congress urging the restoration of silver to its proper position in the interest of trade, to prepare a petition for circulation, throughout the country, and probably make arrangements for holding another National convention at an early day.

In the petition to Congress it will be set forth that, believing that the demonetization of silver, by which the money standard of the country was changed from gold and silver, as established by the Constitution, to gold alone, was an act unequalled for the people, and one which has worked great wrong to the producing and industrial interest of the country, by restricting money supply and increasing the value of gold, thus forcing down prices of all commodities to the detriment of the great body of the people, we respectfully petition your honorable bodies to restore, at the session of Congress, for the restoration of silver to its constitutional place as a money metal, with the same rights of coinage and legal tender as accorded to gold, and to direct the Government down to 1873, when the unfortunate act of demonetization was passed."

There are now in the city Chairman A. Warner, Vice Chairman Thomas Fitch, Treasurer George B. Williams, Secretary Lee Randall, L. M. Ramsey and Frank M. Piskey of the executive committee and the remainder are expected to arrive in the evening of tomorrow morning. Parliors have been secured at Willard's, where the committee will probably hold two sessions daily, afternoon and evening.

He Wanted a Drink Daily.

A couple of months ago William Harrison was paid his salary and went on a protracted spree. He soon got rid of his money, and after the saloons of the city had closed he walked about looking for the windows, saloons, and then to look longingly at the long rows of bottles inside. He wandered back to the saloon where he had spent most of his money. He tried the front "when Congressmen Lehlbach and Morton had won the day, though it was known that no part in the victory, Republicans ambitious to serve their country by selling postage stamps were very numerous in the pretty precincts of East Orange. However, the commission of the postmistress did not expire until the 1st day of February next. It was a race of endurance rather than of speed. It narrowed down at last to three men—Stephen B. Long, a former postmaster; E. E. Mills and William H. Baldwin. At the last moment Mr. Long withdrew. The executive committee then decided by one majority in favor of Mr. Baldwin, who was the candidate favored by Mr. Henry A. Potter, a member of the committee and a very active Republican, well known throughout the State."

This morning in the Criminal Court he admitted all this, and pleaded guilty to the charge of housebreaking. The District Attorney said he had no desire to prosecute, and suggested that the case be dismissed. Chief Justice Blingham doubted that he had the power to dismiss the case without trial, and said that the better plan would be to enter a nolle prosequi. The matter will be decided on Saturday.

A Night's Work at the Observatory.

The last of the series of Georgetown University public lectures will be delivered on Wednesday evening next in Gaston Memorial Hall of Georgetown College. It will be entitled "A Night's Work at the Observatory," and will be by Rev. John H. S. J., who made his studies at the Jesuit College of Folkshire, Austria, one of the great observatories of the world, and who has been for many years a mathematician and astronomer at the universities of Bonn and Münster. At Bonn he studied under the direction of the famous physicist, Clausius, and was afterwards known as Professor Helms. Father Helms is known in scientific circles as the author of a series of observations on "Variable Stars," published in the "Harvard Observatory Annals." His "Observations on Known Variables," a work upon which he is engaged at present at the Georgetown University, will be furnished in a forthcoming volume of the same series, when a satisfactory method of reduction has been determined upon. A few years ago Father Helms, in connection with Director Holden of the Lick Observatory, published the results of the investigation of the Italian astronomer, Tacchini, on Southern stars, reduced to 1850. The lecture will be of the greatest interest.

The Potomac Women's Relief Corps.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Potomac Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R. Department, was largely attended last evening. A large number of applications for membership were received and four new members elected. The new Vice President, Mrs. Frances Burger, Conductor Mrs. Mary M. Paige, and her assistant, Mrs. Mary Eldridge, were installed by Past Department Commander J. B. Barker. The annual report of the executive committee showed that $9,000 had been raised by the corps in the past year. During the year $1,250 was contributed to the National Relief Corps, and $2,500 to the National Soldiers' Home. The report was read by the Secretary, Mrs. J. B. Barker, and was well received. A hospital tent presented to Mrs. Clara Barton; $5,000 in money and $2,500 in clothes were contributed to the Johnstown sufferers. Over $250 was cleared from the "Throne of Fame" entertainment, given January 31. The thanks of the corps were tendered to the donors. The corps contributed their services, and to the business men and comrades for services rendered.

Abolishing Personal Bonds.

The custom of taking personal bonds in the Police Court is about to fall into disuse. "They don't seem to mean anything," said Judge Miller this morning, "and hereafter Mr. Harper, you will not use them on your informants. A fine will be put against such people and suspended during good behavior. This will be better."

"What do 'personal bonds' mean?" asked The Critic reporter of Prosecuting Attorney Dumont.

"Out in West Virginia, when a man sees a rattlesnake," he answered, "and hasn't got a good chance to kill him they take his personal bonds and let him go about his business."

Real Estate in the Northeast. While people have been talking of real estate in the northeastern part of the city, said Mr. James E. Waugh, the real estate man yesterday, "we have not been idle in the northeastern section, and the results have been of the most encouraging description. During the past year more than a thousand buildings were disposed of at Charlton and Central Heights, and the prospects are equally flattering for the present season. More than one hundred dwelling-houses will be erected in these subdivisions of the District, and the growth of the northeast will keep pace with its strongest competitor on the other side of the map."

Stampede Caused by a Runaway. A horse attached to a light buggy ran away from in front of the Federal building on Louisiana avenue this morning. He galloped down the Avenue past Police Headquarters, the front wheel smashing itself against the iron railings of the staircase, and tearing them from their fastenings. The buggy was overturned, and smashed to fragments. The horse was the property of John T. Crowley of 1927 L street, and was being driven by a man who was not named.
